Michael Anastassiades is a Cypriot-born, London-based designer, known for his lithe yet commanding lighting structures. His work also includes jewelry, furniture and tabletop objects. With its stark lines and simple geometric composition, Anastassiades' pieces offer a playful, intellectual take on contemporary design. His lighting fixtures will often pair elemental shapes like cylinders, spheres, and tubes with more luxury, reflective materials - mirrors, crystal and polished bronze - creating a distinctive interplay, both widely imitated and highly sought-after.
